Director Quotes

I was shooting a commercial with my main character who is a transgendered woman and her story in a way touched me. And I wanted to make her act also in her story. So we came out with an idea of fragments of relationship. We think that the key is to respect a film structure, no matter how long the short will be. As the film becomes shorter, that work gets harder. That's the great thing of one minute films. It's not anyone's job.

When we were shooting I didn't give any script so that they could feel every scene in the mood of that moment since there were so many flashback scenes.

I like the challenge to put a story in one minute and I really like the idea of another way of storytelling is possible. You don't need so much time to tell a story
